

Article Overview

The average import price of optical fiber cables in Austria in 2024 was $29,414 per ton, while the average export price was $33,367 per ton, reflecting recent market trends and supplier dynamics.

Market Pricing and Trends

Austria's optical fiber cable market has experienced price fluctuations in recent years. Import prices increased by 4.8% in 2024, reaching $29,414 per ton, while export prices declined by 13.9% to $33,367 per ton despite a long-term upward trend since 2012. The market is expected to continue evolving due to technological advancements and growing demand for high-speed connectivity .

Key Suppliers and Trade Partners

Austria has a robust network of 333 optical cable suppliers, with exports reaching 457 buyers worldwide. Major import sources include Germany, Romania, and Poland, which together accounted for 54% of total imports by value. On the export side, Austria primarily ships to Germany, the United States, and Poland, representing 53% of total exports .

Market Dynamics

The Austrian market has seen a steady increase in imports from 2020 to 2024, with a CAGR of 7.35%, although the year-on-year growth for 2023-2024 showed a slight decline of -24.75%. This indicates a temporary slowdown in import growth, likely influenced by global supply chain factors and price volatility .

Supplier Options

For procurement, Austrian suppliers offer a range of optical fiber cables, including fiber unit, mini, micro, and standard cables, along with services such as blowing, splicing, OTDR measurement, and network planning. Companies like SCAR-A-Tec, EPS, LUMPI-BERNDORF, and E. Hartner & Co GmbH are notable suppliers providing both standard and customized solutions .

Strategic Considerations

When sourcing optical fiber cables in Austria, buyers should consider:

- o Supplier reliability and export history
- o Price trends and potential volatility
- o Customization options for specific industrial or data center applications
